

By signing up to the NLP Practitioner with us, you agree to the following T&Cs:

1. By signing up and paying your deposit, you have claimed one of a limited number of places on this course. Should you choose not to continue the course for any reason, you will remain liable for the rest of the course fee unless otherwise agreed.
2. Your data (name and contact details) is kept by us for the purposes of administering the course. It may be viewed by your tutors or their admin team, and shared with the ANLP (certifying body) for certification and membership purposes. We will never pass your information on to any third party without express permission/your request. The only exception is where we run a WhatsApp group for the course participants only, in which case your WhatsApp number will be visible to other course participants.
3. Live sessions are recorded for the purposes of supplying the video to course participants only. Video will not be shared on any other platform without express permission being sought first, and is visible solely to course participants.
4. You are encouraged to take responsibility for your own learning. As well as the live sessions, there is also weekly homework which you are required to do in order to complete the course.
5. Certification is dependent on
 - a. Full participation in all live and homework sessions of the course (where a missed session is unavoidable a catch up session can be arranged for an extra charge).
 - b. Demonstrating the requisite competencies as required by ourselves and the certifying body, the ANLP.
6. The course is fully certified by the ANLP. An ANLP seal on your certificate, which comes with three months' trial membership of the ANLP, can be added at a small extra cost.
